HUNTING IN ARKANSAS.
What I am going to tell you now I am going to tell you with something of pride. The boys should have owned themselves with so much glory, and fear that, perhaps, some one who does not know me well, or fear me much, may think and call me a Mur-derer, but I am a just and cool man, which properly translated means
"I shall not lie."

Yesterday evening after the morning rain, the sun came out warm.
The sweating earth responded with grateful moisture to his penetrating beams, and the dark woods seemed to be clothed in garments of hurried gold.
The captain proposed that we make the drives between Cypress and Hend Lake. We mounted and galloped to our stables. As usual early in the drive the dogs got up deer and ran far beyond the utmost guards and no one got a shot. At the foot of Cypress lake the captain blew the gathering signal. We advanced the will and gathered around him. We then crowded the neck of the lake lake, and in making the circuit of that extensive body of water we struck a couple of woods we had never seen before. We were lost, and for an hour we wandered, only seemingly to get deeper and deeper into the unknown wood. It seemed if the wild beast sought a fair here he might find it, and was sought from year to year. But at last an opening appeared in the great forest like a rift in storm clouds, and we rode out into a little clearing where in times ago human force had struggled, and struggle in vain, to combat the desolation of nature. A cabin, its roof half caved in, its walls half buried in drift sand, its doors and windows battered down and gone, told in sad accents of the spirit of decay that now held sway over a spot where once, many years ago, had smiled and childhood prattled around a happy hearthstone. A fire still burned in the broken roof and a vessel sought shelter from intruding sun within the recesses of its broken and broken walls. Back of the old house, sweeping around it and holding it as within an arm of a circle, was a little field of some ten acres, overgrown with weeds and low bushes, and back of this, in dark outlines, the tall cottonwood and stately cypress formed a background gloomy and impressive. On this secluded nook the sun shone with peculiar warmth and lustre, and in rounded a spot where every dividen of the forest might come and rest in peace and happiness.

The captain said he believed the field was full of deer, and told us to dismount, hitch our horses, and around and take the deer, and would drive the deer out from under the dog he had. We spoke to his purs, for the thing had an uncanny look and creep around that field like murderous assassins creeping upon a victim. The captain, however, was made the circuit, leaving Bill Craven in the center of the arc by a large cypress, and every man was ready for the deadly fray. The captain had scarcely entered the field when a faint light appeared, and both barrels of his gun went off as a large dog got up, and then, wonderful to relate, the whole field seemed to be alive with bounding deer, and as they sought shelter in the woods, the cypress blazed from point to point and the forest shook with the echoing guns. Mr. Parrish killed two bucks and wounded another. Burke killed two does and fired several shots at others. Will Davis killed a large doe, and a large and missed another. Monroe shot two does; Peay slew two bucks, but the largest one of all, the very antlered monarch of the forest, arose, shook his hairy crest and sought exit by Bill Craven at the cypress tree. He saw him coming and fired hastily and struck him with one shot in the brisket. The buck seemed to be astonished and then he became mad at the idea that Bill should be able to hit him, the lord of the forest, and he then roared his mane and rushed at Bill, who threw his gun away and ran behind the tree. The buck did not stop but buried his horn three inches deep in the tree and was held fast and tight. Bill saw his opportunity and rushed out and caught him by the tail and cried with all his lungs, "run here, run here!" but everybody was engaged, for the work of slaughter went on. Deacon McCombs killed a buck and a doe.
Henry Drane killed a buck and a doe, and shot a goose. Mr. West, who is something of a character, six feet and a half high, and the very impersonation of a giant, and the shoots a large doe, and the deer
with one barrel, missed with the other,
and looking up and seeing signs
of rain, put on his slippers, built a fire
and snuck his gun barrel in to dry,
for he never loads until the fire is out.
Bill Craven at the cypress tree, and shot a large doe, and the deer
with one barrel, missed with the other,
and looking up and seeing signs
of rain, put on his slippers, built a fire
and snuck his gun barrel in to dry,
for he never loads until the fire is out.

On the far stand, Baldwin, a man who has been hunting with us for several days, killed a fine doe. A beaver chased old Bill out of the cane, and Capt. White saw it about fifty yards away. Wash Willis shot at and wounded a tawn.
"This young Henry Drane and I remain in camp and go on the lake and try for fish, but with no success.
Drane brought a gill net with him, and some days ago set it in the lake and yesterday he tried to pull it up, but said it was full of fish, and he could not do it. To-day the negroes went down and got it up, and the fish were proved to be large fish.
Besides the small fry, weighing four or five pounds, they took from it three catfish that would average forty pounds each. The head of one weighed thirteen pounds.
Drive the woods across Jefferson lake this evening. Started a great number of deer, which nearly all ran around the lake, but the dogs carried a fawn to the head of Cypress, which was shot at twice by Monroe, and then shot and wounded by Cravens, and was caught in the lake by the dogs. Several other deer crossed and recrossed the sand bar.
About sunset, Alex. Blakemore, Mr. Leavess and Mr. Jones came to camp and were heartily welcomed.
Alex. is the same old bald-headed genial companion that we have always found him to be, and Mr.
Leavess is the famous bear hunter of these parts. He is something of a curiosity to look at—a small man, and yet game, every inch of him.
The doctors have had him of him, and how they left him finally I cannot say, but physically they salvated him with his mouth is very much drawn and pinched.
They say that in a fray or the moment deadly breath, or in a fight with bulls or the gorilla, perhaps, that the man loses his diminutiveness, such courage home up until his corporeity assumes gi-gantic proportions. As for Mr. Jones, he is a big fellow, and his name is Jones, last night I slept between Jones, at Arkansas, and Gravel, or Kentucky, and such was the superabundance of color that I dreamed I was the sunniest subject, to med over the burning smile of Arden and crossed recovered the equator all night long.
Leavess did not bring his bear dogs, expects them to-morrow.

THE BATTLE LOST.

The Republicans Elect Their Whole City Ticket.

Dabney and Forbes Less Than 30 Votes Behind.

A Heavy Vote But a Quiet and Peaceable Election.

The election Saturday was the most exciting and hotly contested municipal fight ever waged in the city. The Republicans polled their strength early and were about 75 votes ahead at noon. Both sides worked untiringly till night and a tremendous vote was polled. The Republicans had a decided advantage in having the sheriff of the election at his side in many instances was cast to settle the matter between the judges. The total vote was 1030 and the entire Republican ticket was elected by majorities of from 24 to 63 over the foremost man on the Progressive Ticket. Following is the vote for the various candidates:

Republican. O. S. Brown, 563. F. W. Dabney, 520. Alex. Gilliam, 521. M. C. Forbes, 483. E. P. Campbell, 370. W. T. Ralston, 496. A. H. Anderson, 347. Geo. O. Thompson, 488. C. H. McDaniel, 378. W. J. Wilkins, 480. E. B. Long, 350. H. C. Gant, 489. J. P. Frouss, 344. F. P. Henderson, 423. Scattering, W. M. Hill, 11. Peter Postell, 1.

An analysis of the vote shows that more than 100 votes were cast for the Republican ticket that were not on the tax lists of the city. A few of these were exempted parties, some were young men just of age, but a large majority of them were either not entitled to vote or voters overlooked by the assessors. A list of their names was taken down for the benefit of the city, as the assessor has the right to list all parties who do not vote. There were probably enough of these votes to have changed the result of two or three of the Progressive candidates if they had been ruled out, but the Republicans would probably have elected a majority of their board anyway. Their majority in the city is from 125 to 150 on a full vote and they had all of their workers on hand and kept their forces well in line.

Probably 25 white Republicans and 35 or 40 colored men voted for the Progressive ticket, while 25 or 30 Democrats voted with the Republicans. There was a great deal of scratching in the afternoon, probably 75 split tickets being voted.

As was expected the hindmost man on the ticket elected is a candidate for a county officer, who appears to have been lulled by the friends of other candidates.

The struggle is over and the battle has been lost. The Kentuckian accepts defeat with as good a grace as possible and is ready to extend its congratulations to the victorious candidates.

City Attorney Jas. Breathitt was re-elected without opposition, receiving 537 votes.

A HUNG JURY.

Probability That One of the Cronin Jurors Has Been Fixed.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—The jury in the Cronin case will pass another night in its room. It is said that where it was on the first ballot on Friday night, fifty hours since—it is in favor of convicting all the defendants. The recalcitrant juror, John Culver, who would not have a word to say to his associates yesterday, unburied far enough to-day to discuss some portions of the evidence, but no ballot was taken. Judge McConnell came from his residence at Lake View at 4 o'clock, and waited until 6, when receiving no word from the jury room he declared the court adjourned until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.

FAIRVIEW.

FAIRVIEW, Ky., Dec. 16.—Owen Clark, Jr., was arraigned before Judge D. Lackey on the 12th for evading toll and breach of the peace at the toll gate near here and the jury found him guilty of both offenses.

Col. F. B. Richardson, of Pembroke, was mixing with his many friends here Thursday.

Sheriff Cartwright, of Todd, was the guest of Esq. W. B. Brewer one day last week.

Miss Anna W. Hancock, of St. Bethlehem, Tenn., who has been visiting here for some time, returned home Friday, accompanied by her cousin, Mr. Joseph Hancock.

Much complaint is heard of meat being spoiled in this vicinity. This should be a warning to farmers not to be in too much haste to kill their pork.

Several of the boys were fined for shooting inside the corporate limits of Fairview.

Born to the wife of B. F. Wright a boy. It died and was buried the same day.

The elite of Fairview were entertained at the residence of M. R. Tandy on the night of the 12th. There was a musical entertainment that was highly enjoyed by all present.

Miss J. Annie Padon has returned from a visit to Barron county.

A DUTY TO YOURSELF.

It is a duty that people will use a common, ordinary pill when they can secure a valuable English one for the same money. Dr. Barker's English pills are a positive cure for sick-headache and all liver troubles. They are small, sweet, easily taken, and do not gripe. H. B. GARNER, Druggist.

JAMES J. TANDY.

A TRIBUTE TO HIS MEMORY.

At the instance of his devoted mother, sorrowing in her fearful bereavement, I would write a few lines as a tribute to departed worth, dictated by a spirit of condoling sympathy, believing as we do that every praise-worthy element in human character should be entered upon personal record. Though we always feel more or less sad on account of the untimely death of one so noble in all that constitutes true manhood, and so promising in the hopeful outlook and reasonable possibilities of his future life, as was James J. Tandy, the subject of this sketch, yet in his mental and moral make-up were developed an unflinching integrity which gave stability to his virtuous and unquestioned character. He possessed in a marked degree the commendable traits of a true gentleman that rose above the vacillating weaknesses of a vicious life, choosing as his associates and friends young men of probity and correct habits. On his word of honor, one could safely depend, and if he witnessed the cup of bitterness to know of his high aims and fixed purposes, in the struggle of life.

He earned the respect and unquestioned confidence of all with whom he had to do. He was vigilant in business, faithful to duty, ever on the alert and prompt in action in every department of his operations, often overful and generous, watchful and ready wherever and whenever duty called him. He was sober in his habits, courteous in his demeanor, polite in address to every one, which won the confidence of all his associates and the well-merited esteem of all the railroad officials, as well as the social regards of the refined and intelligent. He was rapidly rising in the line of promotion as one in whom important trusts could be safely confided, knowing well that his willing hands and brave heart and dauntless courage fitted him for any sphere of railroad activity that might open up before him. His habits were exemplary and worthy of imitation. A clear-headed soberness was one of his prominent virtues. Fearless in peril and brave in danger, he feared not when duty called him to do and dare in heat or cold, by night or day. In his kindness of heart, his generous nature often prompted him to relieve a friend from duty, even at the cost of an extra tax upon his own energies and power of endurance.

After the awful misfortune of losing his leg, by amputation, and all hope of recovery had failed and he saw his life-blood fast dripping away he called for pen and paper that he might write all of his efforts to his almost heart-broken mother, who then seemed dead to him, than ever before, and all the happy memories of his childhood and early life crowded in upon him, which cheered him in that dark, desponding hour, but he determined to meet death calmly and fearlessly, feeling that if his time had come, and that he must thus pass away, that he was willing to go. He had that moral courage that is inspired by honest convictions and as he ever dared to do right, he had a conscience void of offense toward God and man. His faults were few, but in his dying hour they were overshadowed by his many virtues. He bravely did the look the last scene of his life and was near, no murmur escaped his lips, even while passing through the dreadful ordeal of amputation without the numbing influence of a nerve quelling anesthetic. No remorseful terrors, that oft becloud the evening sky of the vile and the depraved, hung a single shadow across the sunset of his young life, believing as he did that it would be "better further on." So his last was fearlessly launched out upon the wide ocean of eternity. Our sympathies were more deeply touched on learning of his untimely death, as a young lady of Tennessee, who would soon have been his bride. Though we but faintly imagine the poignant grief of her young confiding heart, as she learned of his sad and sudden taking off, as the news rolled back in wild and sickening surges upon her disappointed soul. A letter to him from her gentle hand, doubtless full of love and tenderness, but too sacred for mortal eyes to read, was placed, unopened, in his cold and nerveless grasp, to be read only by his disembodied spirit and the good angels that doubtless conveyed his soul to the land of the undying! In the hearts of loved ones left behind, (trobbs a hope that is immortal, while faith, on snowy pinions, spans the valley of human sorrow and climbs the glowing stairway of the skies, while a ray of light flashes back upon his tomb to relieve the sorrows of emotional bereavement, inspiring the thought that he now lives with the good, the true, and the noble hearted.

When to be of bereavement shall fade its throes, As loved ones there gather to weep, To have him come back they will never more cease, To again cross that billowy deep, For striding availing makes dark the gloom, When the heart pants for his smile and light upon the tomb, And that thought is, "HE DIED AT HIS POST."

HOPKINSVILLE, KY., Dec. 8, 1889.

VEPA.

Mr. William T. Price, a Justice of the Peace, at Richmond, Nebraska, was confined to his bed last winter with a severe attack of lumbago; but a thorough application of Chamberlain's Pain Balm enabled him to get up and go to work. Mr. Price says: "The Balm cannot be recommended too highly. Let any one troubled with rheumatism, neuralgia or lame back give it a trial and they will be of the same opinion. 50 cent bottles for sale by Buckner Leavelle."

Buckner Leavelle, Druggist, desires to inform the public that he is agent for the most successful preparation that has yet been produced for coughs, colds and croup. It will loosen and relieve a severe cold in less time than any other treatment. The article referred to is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is a medicine that has won fame and popularity on its merits and one that can always be depended upon. It is the only known remedy that will prevent croup. It must be tried to be appreciated. It is put up in 50 cent and 100 cent bottles. For sale by Buckner Leavelle.

A DENIAL.

"The members of Pardee Lodge, No. 43, are very much wrought up over the publication in the KENTUCKIAN that they are drilling for political purposes, and we, as members, take this method of contradicting the report, which is false and only published for political effect. We are a peaceable people and want no trouble, and will have none unless forced upon us."

The above circular was issued Friday in reply to the statement that a company was being drilled with guns in the hall where political meetings were being held. The company alluded to was not composed in any part of women and we are not advising that any women even were present. If an injustice has been done a benevolent organization, it was unintentional and arose from the fact that this hall was being used for political meetings. The statement in the above circular that the KENTUCKIAN had charged the Pardee Lodge with drilling for political purposes or for any purpose, is entirely without foundation on fact.

SOMEWHAT INDEFINITE.

How a Colored Man Enriched a Traveler in Search of Information.

Mr. Frederick Low Olmsted was traveling through Virginia and lost his way. Coming to a log cabin, he drove up to make inquiries. A negro shortly made his appearance—it was in the days of slavery—wearing a battered hat, a red cravat and an old dress-coat, ragged and threadbare, but adorned with new brass buttons.

"How far is it from here?"

"Oh, 'tain't far, sar?"

"How far do you think?"

"Well, massa, I s'pose—I s'pose—look at my horse—'I s'pose, massa, if you goes on way, sar, I s'pose you sar, I reckon I'll take you—"

"How far is it—how many miles?"

"How many miles, sar? Hal massa, I don't reckon I reckon I ken tell you—not 'cizly, sar, how many miles it is, not 'cizly, 'cizly, sar."

"How is that—you don't what?"

"I don't reckon I reckon I ken give you no direction exsist about de miles, sar."

"Oh, but how many miles do you think it is? Is it two miles?"

Messrs. Parrish Meacham and Bates Wall, of Hettlevew, went to Clarksville Sunday to spend the holidays.
Dr. W. H. Mathews, of Hordson, passed through the city yesterday on his return from a non-official visit to Nashville.
Mrs. Savage, who is in the employ of the L. & N. R. Co., at Mt. Vernon, Ill., is on home on a week's visit to her parents.
Messrs. Robert Holloway and E. A. Starling and Miss Cromwell, came over from Henderson Saturday and spent Sunday in the city. They were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joe McCarroll.
Elder H. A. Macdonald, pastor of the Christian Church, expects to leave next week for New York City to recuperate his health, and it is rumored that he will not return home.
Mr. Isaac Burnett has been growing much worse for several days and his condition is now hopeless. He is almost wholly unconscious, with no prospect of recovery.
Mr. J. K. Gant and family left for Clarksville Sunday. The Progress of Saturday says:
"To-morrow Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Gant and children will arrive from Hopkinsville and take possession of the E. D. Fly place, which they have rented. Mr. and Mrs. Gant are charming people and will be delightful additions to Clarksville society."
Everybody knows that the conditions for health are not favorable when the stomach, liver, and bowels are disordered. In such cases, headache, indigestion, and constipation are the result; for all which ailments the proper remedy is Ayer's Cathartic Pills.
Last Saturday evening a colored boy about 15 years old, son of Sam Wylie, threw a rock at Elma McCamy, the twelve-year-old daughter of Mr. H. F. McCamy, of this place, and came near putting out her left eye. Just before throwing the rock, he kicked another little girl who was with Elma McCamy. He was arrested and is now under bond waiting his trial. The boy is regarded by many as a half-witted fellow and not responsible for what he does.—Princeton Banner.
Lou Minck will conduct the business for Withers & Son, at their new quarters on Seventh street. He is a meat man of long experience and strives hard to please the public in his dealings. His market will be known as the People's Meat Market.
Wm. Campbell, a colored man who voted for the Progressive ticket was yesterday arrested by Republicans charged with voting twice. Two Wm. Campbells voted, but one of them was a white man and the colored man is not guilty as charged.

Reports of a fictitious nature concerning the sale of "Dunstable Abbey" continue to be relayed by the author, Hanson Penn Dix, of this city. A copy of this work would be a most appropriate Christmas gift to a relative or friend.
The Peerless minstrels are busy rehearsing for their performance next Thursday night. Their program will be entirely different from the one presented at their first performance, and none who attend will regret it.
Persons desiring to make a relative or a friend a handsome Christmas present could not find a more appropriate and desirable one than a copy of "Dunstable Abbey," an elegant book, and one written by a Hopkinsville young man.
Two places for holding the Bazar has been changed by the young ladies of the Methodist church to the new jewelry store, No. 105 South Main street, and the date of holding same from Monday to Tuesday so as not to interfere with the Chautauque lecture.
Miss Lillie Price's school on the Fairview pike will close on the 20th inst. with a concert at the Christian church in the vicinity. Miss Price is one of the best young lady teachers in the county and has taught a very successful season.
In the Globe-Democrat's "old folks column" of Sunday appears a notice of Mrs. Elizabeth Harbour, of Chatham, Ill., who was born in this county in 1798. Her parents were Simon and Anna Lindsey, who moved to Illinois in 1807. Of course few if any people in Christian county now remember the old lady, who is over 91 years of age.
When you are out purchasing Christmas presents, don't fail to stop at the store of C. M. Latham and examine his stock. And remember that with every dollar's worth of goods bought there you receive a ticket which may secure for you a present in his gift distribution, which will be worth forty times the amount of your purchase.
Mr. C. W. Rice, of the firm of Rice, Johnson & Overhiser, left last week for Des Moines, Iowa, where he has been offered a position in the shops of the Wabash railroad. Should the place suit him he will remain and move his family there in a short time. We are sorry to lose such a man as Mr. Rice, for he is an industrious and a good citizen in every way.
The two large store rooms occupied by Mr. Frankel's Sons were (brought open Saturday. The assignee has since made heavy sales as the goods are offered at very low prices. It is not yet known what kind of a settlement will be effected with the creditors of the assignors, but it is to be hoped that they will be able to continue in business. The young gentlemen who composed the firm are deservedly popular all over this section, and there is a general feeling of regret that they were forced to assign.

CREAM OF NEWS.

The Three Oldest.
Wonder if our readers ever thought of how few of our physicians are what may be called old men? Dr. D. J. Gish, Dr. Hickman, and Dr. Calves are the only old doctors in the city. Dr. Gish is somewhat feeble and confesses his practice pretty much to those who are able to call at his office. He belongs to the homeopathic school and has for years enjoyed a very large and lucrative practice. He is with the exception of Dr. Gish, the oldest resident physician in Hopkinsville. Dr. R. W. Gish, of the allopathic school, is in vigorous health. The years that come and go do not rest heavily upon him, and to-day he looks almost as hale as he did twenty years ago. He is as fond of telling or listening to a joke as ever, and bids fair to practice his profession for many years to come. Dr. Hickman, who has lived here as long as the two other named gentlemen, though not in such vigorous health as Dr. Gish, is always able and willing to respond to the call of the suffering. He is an allopathic and since locating in this city some 20 years ago has built up a large practice. All three of these excellent physicians are held in the highest esteem, not only in the families in which they have been called to attend the sick but by all our people. And truly may it be said of them that once in our midst have been more faithful to duty than they—no one has ever called on them in vain. While they have seen generations come and pass away from the world, they are still spared to minister to the wants of suffering humanity. May many years yet be added to their useful lives.
Peerless Minstrels' Entertainment.
The Peerless Minstrels will repeat their recent delightful entertainment, for the benefit of the Peerless fire boys, at the Opera House on next Thursday evening, the 19th. The sale of seats will commence at Galbreath's this morning, and parties can secure reserved seats without any extra charge by calling there. The program to be presented is one of the most attractive ever presented to this city by amateurs, and the fact that the affair is under the efficient management of Miss Emily H. Perry is sufficient guarantee that everything will be done in order and render the entertainment worthy of the success that crowned the former one. The cause is worthy, and every citizen of Hopkinsville should patronize it. Remember the date, December 19th.
A Big Extension.
Messrs. Docke, Garth & Schroeder, whose tobacco store is situated on North Main street, are increasing the capacity of their building about one-third its present size. These gentlemen are operating one of the leading industries of the city. Nearly fifty hands are employed by them and when the addition to their building is complete it will be one of the largest of its kind in this section of the State. Mr. W. A. Lowry, the local manager of the firm, is "the right man in the right place," and knows as well as anybody how to conduct the business. Ed. Tandy, the book-keeper and all-round man, fits the place he fills to perfection.
Knocked Senseless by an Unknown.
As Ross Davis, a 16-year-old son of Mr. L. R. Davis, was returning home on last Saturday night at 10 o'clock, some unknown party struck him on the head with a rock knocking him senseless. His cries brought assistance and he was taken to his home near by. His wound is not of much consequence, the shock being caused by the force of the blow. There is no clue to the bold offenders as Davis heard no saw or saw near him when the rock was thrown.
Ward's Engagement.
The annual visit of Fred Ward, the favorite of all actors who come to Hopkinsville, is advertised for Christmas day and evening. "Gaston Cadol" at the matinee in the afternoon and "The Mountebank" at night will be the bill for the engagement. This is the dramatic event of the season. See advertisement for scale of prices.
The Trigg Primary.
The Democratic primary election in Trigg passed off quietly Saturday. The following are said to be the successful candidates: County Judge, Bingham; attorney, John C. Dabney; clerk, Felix Grady; assessor, Green Wallace; surveyor, Jas. Richardson; jailer, York Shoemaker.
Dedication.
We are authorized by the pastor to state that the new Baptist church at Casey will be dedicated on next Sunday, Dec. 22. A number of ministers are expected to be present and take part in the exercises.
Con Haney Last Night.
Con Haney, the Irish lecturer, was billed for a lecture at the Opera House last night on "Ireland and Irishmen." The Kentuckian went to press before the lecture came off.
Travelers may learn; a lesson from Mr. C. D. Cone, a prominent attorney of Parker, Dakota, who says: "I never leave home without taking a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with me and on many occasions have run with it to the relief of some sufferer and have never known it to fail." For sale by Hucker & Leavelle.
Johnny Seary, night operator at the depot, has been suspended for a mistake made a few days ago and a young man named Leggett has taken his place. John is a good operator and has done a fine faithful work for the L. & N. and is not likely to be long out of employment. It is a rule of the road to suspend all of their operators who let a train pass through mistake.
Lost.
About a week ago between the city and the Asylum, a gent's cuff button (plain gold and engraved with initials "J. G.") was lost. Leave at this office and receive reward.
NOTICE.
Persons having claims against the estate of Mack Hume, deceased, are hereby notified to file them with me properly proven on or before February 1st, 1891. J. F. GANSTETT, Admr. This Dec. 16, 1890.

The Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church have changed the time of holding their "social" from next Thursday night to Friday night. This change was made on account of the performance by the Peerless Minstrels at the Opera House on Thursday night. The young people will be glad to have everybody who can attend, and by recitation, songs, etc., will try to make the evening enjoyable.
Messrs. Bassett & Co., in order to let the people know what wonderful bargains they are offering for the Christmas holidays, have increased their advertising space one hundred percent. In our paper today we are looking over their list of a very varied special list will be seen that they make a big offer to everybody wanting to buy Christmas presents. Don't fail to call and examine their stock. It is full and complete, and as to prices, they are merely nominal.
During his recent visit to Lexington Maj. S. R. Crumhough purchased eight blooded mares for his stock farm west of town. He will buy ten or twelve more as soon as he can find them to suit. His farm was surveyed last week and he will have his paddocks and other improvements erected at once.
Neuralgia Persons.
Persons troubled with nervous rambling, nervousness or overwork will be relieved by taking Brown's Iron Bitters. Genuine has trade mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

THIS PAPER is on this Philadelphia and New York Agency of News. Mr. W. A. W. & SON, 100 Broadway, New York.

For each and every cash purchase of ONE DOLLAR a ticket will be given you which will entitle the buyer to a chance in the Gift Distribution of the above list of presents, offering you at the same time

Dry Goods, Notions, Shoes, CARPETS, OIL CLOTHS, Rugs, Mattings, Etc.,

as cheap as any house in Hopkinsville or Christian County, preferring to distribute among my customers, in this manner, these gifts rather than to pay their value in reckless advertisement, assuring you that each present is absolutely worth the price named. Thanking the trade for their very generous patronage in the past and soliciting a continuance in the future, pledging at all times full value for all purchases made in my house, I am, Very Truly,
